

The Unfolding of Personality As the Chief Aim in Education: Some Chapters in Educational Psychology (Classic Reprint)

It is part of the study of man; man at a stage when the disguises are few and the self-revelations are many. Nothing more readily focusses for us our interest in humanity. Reading deeply into child-nature we are inevitably beginning to read deeply into life and its meanings. The study of childhood is in itself of universal interest. Opportunities for prosecuting -the study are never far to seek. Every school, family, public park, playground, is a laboratory. Crucial experiments are going on whether we heed them or not. The text-book is the child, living out his life before us. The legend which invites us to the study is written in the poetry of free and natural child life: the easy romance, the limitless world of make-believe, and under even moderately favourable conditions the spontaneity and the openness of heart and mind. Say Once upon a time to children, and they jump back with us to the time that never was. Say Some day to children, and they will open their souls to marvel and to believe. This up to, say, eight or nine years of age. Soon after this they begin to want to know really and truly ;they begin to leave the wonderland of make-believe for the wonderland of fact.(Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and dont occur in the book.)About the Publisher Forgotten Books is a publisher of historical writings, such as: Philosophy, Classics, Science, Religion, History, Folklore and Mythology.Forgotten Books Classic Reprint Series utilizes the latest technology to regenerate facsimiles of historically important writings.
