On the 26th day of May, 1845, he entered the office of Isaac Hill & Sons, editors, publishers and proprietors of Hills New Hampshire Patriot. At the end of twelve weeks he was enthusiastically discharged. August 18 following he was invited to return and did so. At the end of ten weeks he was uproariously discharged. At the end of twentythree weeks he was with less excitement again discharged. He was again invited to return. He did so. staying with the firm till the two Patriots united. May 15, 1847, a period of forty-eight weeks. Each return was accompanied with a substantial increase of wages, and time lost was paid for in each case. Early in June, 1847, Mr. Jones went to Lowell, Massachusetts, and there, in the office of the Vox Populi he performed his first days work as a full fledged journeyman printer. After a short period of employment he fancied his health needed attention and he spent the time to little purpose till he was tendered a situation in the office of the Independent Democrat, January 24, 1849. From that time until February 21, 1854, he was constantly employed in the various printing offices in Concord, New Hampshire. April 4, 1854, Mr. Jones, with Parsons B. Cogswell, a fellow craftsman, purchased the office of the firm of Tripp & Osgood, printers, and commenced business under the firm name of Jones & Cogswell, and continued until the fall of 1858. Mr. Jones then sold his interest to Mr Cogswell and entered into business with the firm of Fogg & Hadly, editors and publishers of the Independent Democrat, under the firm name of Fogg, Hadley and Company, having the general care and management of the typographical affairs of the office, and so continued until the Democrat...
