

The History of Norwich: From the Earliest Records to the Present Time (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The History of Norwich: From the Earliest Records to the Present Time
Claudius Cæsar, the Roman Emperor, in the fourth year of his reign, invaded this part of the island of Great Britain, then inhabited by the potent nation, called the Icenii - the aborigines of the country. This people submitted to the Romans, and sought an alliance with them, which being accepted by Claudius, he departed, leaving Ostorius his procurator, or lieutenant, to govern and keep in subjection to the Roman yoke his new allies.
