

Research Methods And Presentation

Knowledge of Research Methodology is necessary for all those who either play an active role in conducting research or desire to keep themselves abreast of the current developments in the field of knowledge. This Text Book is designed to provide a foundation course in research methodology and presentation for those who have just entered the field of research in all areas like, Engineering, social sciences, Biological Sciences, Management, and other related disciplines. Though not meant to be an all inclusive and comprehensive work on research methodology, The author give a minimum of the methods and procedures a researcher should know in order to optimize his research results and be able to present his research findings in an acceptable manner.
