

Motivations for code-switching by Edo-speaking people in Nigeria: A sociolinguistic analysis

This book is an analysis of the social motivation for code-switching by Edo-speaking people of Edo State, Nigeria. The analysis is based on real-life communicative encounters observed over a period of time. The book highlights the different reasons informing the way Edo-speaking code-switch. Some of the reasons, among others, are to accommodate other linguistic groups, to index modernity, multiple identities, for cultural deference, use lexicon of other domains and use in discussing restricted cultural issues such as taboos and sexual overtones.
